Hi, Dan:

(b) (5) ACP, (b) (5) AWPP, (b) (5) DPP

If you, David, and Downey approve, I propose to send these to OLC.

Assuming this look ok to you and Jack, will you plan to run this past David/Downey? I'd then be happy to transmit over to Rosemary once we have approval.

-Aaron

A 2x6 grid of horizontal bar charts. The left column has 4 rows, and the right column has 5 rows. Each bar is black with a white outline. The bars in the first row of the left column are very short. The bars in the second row are longer, with the first bar reaching the top of the grid. The bars in the third row are the longest, with the first bar reaching the top. The bars in the fourth row are very short. The bars in the second row of the right column are the longest, with the first bar reaching the top. The bars in the third row are the longest, with the first bar reaching the top. The bars in the fourth row are the longest, with the first bar reaching the top. The bars in the fifth row are the longest, with the first bar reaching the top.

A horizontal bar divided into three equal sections by vertical lines. The first section contains a small black rectangle. The second section contains a larger black rectangle. The third section contains a very long, thin black rectangle.
